IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Moog Inc. and S3 AeroDefense Expand Support Capabilities

Agreement Enhances Global Maintenance, Repair and Sustainment Support for H-60/S-70 Operators

Farnborough, United Kingdom – Moog Inc. (NYSE: MOG.A and MOG.B) announces the execution of an agreement with S3 AeroDefense during the Farnborough International Airshow, marking another step in the long-standing relationship between the two companies.

Through the agreement, S3 AeroDefense will become an authorized Moog Repair Center supporting H-60 / S-70 systems and components, strengthening our ability to deliver responsive maintenance, repair, and sustainment solutions to defense customers globally. The agreement further enhances the ability to support H-60 / S-70 operators across international markets in accordance with applicable regulations.

“Moog values its relationship with S3 AeroDefense and the role the company plays in supporting customers globally,” said Camille Flaherty, Military Global Sustainment Division Vice President & General Manager at Moog. “This agreement reflects our mutual commitment to delivering high-quality support and long-term value to operators.”

“This agreement represents an important milestone for S3 AeroDefense and further strengthens our ability to support our customers around the world,” said Jeff Wnuk, Senior Vice President of Operations at S3 AeroDefense. “We continue to focus on delivering responsive, reliable support solutions that help operators maintain mission readiness.”

The announcement reinforces Moog and S3 AeroDefense’s continued investment and commitment to support military aircraft sustainment worldwide.
